A Birthday Present

In January, a very generous and caring young lady decided to give up her birthday presents and give that money to Alex's House, so that a puppy would have a second chance at life. Brecklyn's gift provided everything a new arrival to Alex's House needs—spaying, all three vaccinations, a parvo test, deworming and microchipping. We understand that Brecklyn has inspired those around her to put others ahead of themselves and help those in need.

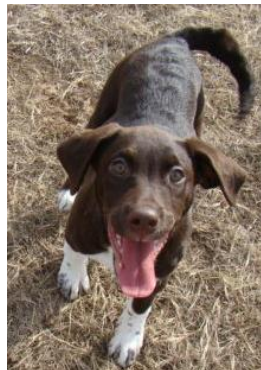

Parvo Puppies Survive

Alex's House is thrilled to say that all three of our residents who suffered from the deadly parvo virus survived. Their combined treatment has cost about $1200. Aleah Webber hosted a two-week Scentsy sale. That combined with other donations has brought our total amount raised to almost $250. But there's still a long way to go, so if you know any puppy lovers, please let them know, we need their help.

Welcome PJ

Sadly, PJ's owner had to move to assisted living and there were no family members to take in PJ. With the landlord preparing to take possession of the house, PJ needed a safe place. Because PJ is mixed breed and is confused by all these changes (and who wouldn't be), he is currently timid around new people, which means he would not be considered highly adoptable by most rescues, but Alex's House isn't most rescues. We are willing to give him the time he needs to find out that lots of people want to love him.
